DISCLAIMER

The laboratory services are for informational purposes. It is the intention of iVET Labs to provide users with information to better understand their animal's health but rather not to provide specific veterinary advice. Specific veterinary advice including diagnosis and treatment will not be provided. Clients should be aware that test results will not automatically be forwarded to any veterinarian or professional or become a part of office veterinary records unless you make a specific request. Clients may request to release information to their consultant veterinarian if they desire. Always seek the advice of a trained veterinary professional for veterinary advice, diagnosis, or treatment of your animal. Once testing has been ordered, iVET Labs has a no-cancellation policy due to numerous upfront fees incurred.

The test methods used will, in the great majority of cases, accurately detect the presence or absence of a pathogen or antibody (as per test design) or the amount of an analyte in tissue and blood samples when submitted and tested correctly. However, results relate only to the sample as received by the laboratory and iVET Labs accepts no liability for the traceability or quality of samples prior to receipt by the laboratory, either of which may compromise the quality of test results generated and whilst iVET Labs warrant that our tests will meet all the applicable declared specifications, iVET Labs makes no other warranty, expressed or implied and accept no responsibility or liability in respect of false results which are within the limits of the declared specifications of the tests offered or for the consequences of any actions taken on the basis of the information provided. No representation or warranty is given by iVET Labs, or any member or employee, or other person connected with iVET Labs as to the accuracy of any test method or test results. No biological test is 100% accurate. If an inaccurate result is suspected, the animal should be isolated and re-tested.
